FROM : Robert M. Gates
Deputy Director for Intelligence

Jim,

In response to your note following your recent briefing at NPIC, attached is a brief exposition of a number of steps taken to maintain and improve our military analytic capability and ability to understand how to exploit current and future collection systems. We will be happy to discuss and expand upon any of these points if you wish.

A rectangular box with a thin black border, used to redact a handwritten signature.

NOTE FOR: DDI

Bob -

I heard an NPIC presentation a few days ago which left me with a very strong sense of how big a task it will be to develop future military analysts who understand how best to exploit all the collection capabilities potentially available to them. I would like to read or hear a brief exposition one of these days which would give me a sense of how we're coping with this question.

STAT Thanks.
